Dear ,

Thank you for your gift to the Schlesinger Library General Gift Fund. Your generous contribution directly supports the people, programs, and collections that make the Radcliffe Institute a home for big thinkers, new ideas, cutting-edge research, and thought-provoking events that are free and open to the public.

For example, the Schlesinger Library, which houses Julia Child's extensive papers, sponsored "Siting Julia: A Julia Child Centenary Symposium" to celebrate the legacy of this American phenomenon on the centenary year of her birth. Authors, television producers, restaurateurs, and the Childs' family and neighbors provided a behind-the-scenes view of her life and work. The Academic Ventures Program organized the conference "Take Note," which brought together scholars from literature, history, media studies, information science, and computer science to discuss the history of note taking in different disciplines, and the evolution of digital annotation tools. The Fellowship Program is hosting 51 scholars and artists for the 2012–2013 academic year, providing time, space, and resources for projects to develop in a variety of disciplines.

A commitment to excellence and inquiry, across fields and disciplines, guides the work of the Radcliffe Institute. Thanks to your support, the Institute can continue to provide opportunities for scholars, artists, and the public to expand their knowledge and advance their scholarship. Thank you for your continuing interest in the work of the Radcliffe Institute.

With appreciation and good wishes,
